PARKE DAVIE & Co.'s

The great value of the peculiar properties of the Coca leaf are now well known. A multitude of morbid phenomena have their orgin in reflex irritation, and hence, under the influence of enodynes and sedatives, the symptoms disappear.

Cocaine differs from the narcotics which have heretofore been employed, such as opium, in that its action is comparatively transient, and is attended with little, if any, secondary depression.

It becomes thus preeminently the remedy for all hausting mental labour has led to morbid depression of spirits. There is no remedy like it for a fit of the "blues." It relieves the nervous irritability that follows indulgence in excesses of any kind, restoring the capacity for work, and giving renewed energy. It thus acts as a sort of antidate to the effect of opium, alcohol-tobacco or coffee, and judiciously used may even enable one to overcome the morbid craving for any of these stimulants when they have been The cordial may be given in doses of a dessert spoonful, repeated as occasion requires.
